

Family and Educator EOC Score Reports Coming in November

In November, parents and educators will receive the new TNReady score reports for high school End of Course results in math, English, and U.S. history from the 2015-16 school year. The reports were redesigned over the course of a year with significant input from parents and educators and will provide more information than ever before for parents and educators about student achievement and growth.

- The new design of the score reports offers high school families the ability to see how their student(s) performed when compared to grade-level expectations set by educators in Tennessee.

- The class roster score reports for high school educators will help educators to identify areas where their students exceeded, met, or were below expectations, and the standard analysis report for educators outlines how their students performed on each tested standard, allowing teachers to continually refine their practice.

Practice Tests

Practice tests are available as PDF documents in EdTools for you to download and use. You will note these contain the same items as the practice tests from last year. This is because the standards did not change this year; however, the structure of the test will be different—we will have one part, instead of two, with smaller subparts that can more easily fit into the school schedule. We've updated the structure of the practice tests to more closely align with the structure of the operational assessment. While these practice materials include the majority of question types that students may experience on the operational TNReady assessment, the PDF documents are not designed to be the full length of the operational test.

If you need your log-in credentials for EdTools, contact your building-level testing coordinator.
